Danish Emigration to New Zealand

The immigration to New Zealand from Denmark primarily took place during two periods, the early 1870s and the late 1950s.

The publication deals with this exciting part of Danish history in "our antipodes" and focuses on topics like: Danish Agriculture - The Danish Church - New Zealand and Scandinavia - The Statistical Aspect of the Danish Emigration - Emigration Letters.

The authors are well known researchers of Danish emigration history and people with a special interest in the Danish - New Zealand relationship.
